The mannequins will be a regular thing at the race meetings now, they say. They are very distracting. White and black was the motif in the costumes, with a touch of cerise here and there. This is on the authority of a fair informant. But some of the girls looked cold. Binoculars and a riding trop are not as good as an overcont when one is wearing white riding-breeches and a hunting coat.

The crowd that wasn't just dressed up for the occasion enjoyed the day. There was almost the taste of salt water in the air, and the sun was not toe hot for comfort. Steamer rugs and furs for those who motored down did not come in amiss. The mannequins will be a regular Colvert was the choice in this, but he had to be ridden out to beat Lily Orme, one of the Piping Rock Subscription horses.

Johnny started upholding the honor of the Tucker family on Cloud in the South Shore plate, at a mile on the flat. Cloud was the paddock choice, and after the first rush of Varuna made every post a winning one. Chaplin, from the Jericho Stables, made a brave rush to the front in the last four furiongs, and almost caught Cloud but that was as close to the biggest rud of the purse as he got. However, he made the place easily over Varuna.

H. S. D. D. S. D. but that was as close to the biggest end of the purse as he got. However, he made the place easily over Varuna. H. S. Page cantered home alone on his Ben Cabell in the Hewlett Park plate for hunters, at two miles and a laff over the brush course. There was another chapter of accidents in this chase, for Ben Cabell was the only the four that went to the post to finish. The first to come to grief was Gold Plate, which has won many a good race at the amateur meetings.

The suit is based on a stenographic transcript of the evidence brought out at the police court trial last week-Ainsmith, it is said, admitted that he knocked the motorman down. The declaration of damages asserts that the attack was wholly unprovoked.

FULL SUMMARY OF AMATEUR RACE MEET

All but one of the six races were for gentleman riders, and Johnny for gentleman riders, and Johnny Tucker started the season with a double on his old standbys, Cloud and ble on his old standbys, Cloud and Cubert. Culvert was beaten by Mr. Specs in the first race, the Albro Farm Cup, at half a mile on the flat, after a whipping finish. Then the son of Bridgewater went to the post in the Bridgewater went to the post in the last race—the Dush, a quarter mile last race—the Dush, a quarter mile that the country of the country of Annapolis, Md., May 1.—This was a real Pennsylvania day on the Severn River, Vivian Nickalls's 'varsity and junior eights running away from the midshipmen and helping to close what has been a most unusually discouraging rowing season for the middles. In the three-cornered racing card of the afternoon, in which Penn and Navy were the only competitors, the Middles captured only the freshman event.

The time in all of the races was slower than has marked the other races at Annapolis this year, this being due to the fact that they were started earlier and were pulled against a heavy tide.

Particular interest centred in the 'varsity event, not alone because it was the most important of the races, was not the races, was the most important of the races, was not the control of the races, was pulled down to 36, going from that to 34 about mid-course. On the other hand, the sailors got away at 40 strokes a minute and dropped to 36 only once, pulling 38 for most of the distance.

The time in all of the races was stiff one from start to finish, the sailors proving worthly and the proving and the proving worthly and the proving worthly and the proving and the proving worthly and the proving worthly and the proving and the proving worthly and the proving and the p
